JACK DILLON
MADE QUICK WORK OF FLYNNPut Pueblo Fireman Down For the Count in the Fourth Round

DEWEY, Okla., July 4.—Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, Ind., knocked out Jim Flynn, Pueblo Fireman, in the fourth round of their scheduled fifteen round bout here today.

A left hook to the jaw, followed by a hard right cross sent Dillon's opponent to the floor for the final count. The first two rounds were even, while Flynn led in the third. In the fourth the fireman went to the canvas twice for a count of eight before Dillon sent home the blows that won the fight.

2:16 TROT ADDED
TO RACE PROGRAMJoe Driscoll Down in Calgary
Now Getting Line on Probable Starters

Such a large number of 2:16 trotters have appeared that it was decided by the race committee of the Edmonton exhibition to add that race to the already long list of events. At present Joe Driscoll, who is secretary of the race meet, is in Calgary looking over some of the horses that are coming to Calgary now, and have will enter the Edmonton exhibition at the end of the month, while the racing horses, while at Calgary, will look after the harness horses. J. Miller, Allen, and J. W. Latham have been selected as the judges, while Geo. Starnes, of the I.H. and C. Mass, may keep their eye on the class.

When Dillon Beat Moran

By Ripley

MORAN'S TERRIBLE RIGHT—WHICH KNOCKED COFFEY, WELLS, PALMER, ETC.—ONLY
GLIDED HARMLESSLY OVER JACK'S SHOULDER

Little Jack Dillon kicked his Frank Moran in New York on Friday night. The Indiana fighter, who is a veritable Hop-my-thumb, compared with the better Pittsburgher, was in shade at the end of the ten-round bout at Washington Park over in Brooklyn. He charged Moran's fire to a water, and when they would look together in the center of the ring, under a great blaze of electric light, Dillon would pump both hands up against Moran's mouth and nose. The punches did not seem to travel more than a couple of inches, but it was as if he were using a knife.

The blood would gush from Moran's face. Already pale and corpse under the circus glare of calcium, it gave the Pittsburgher a ghastly effect. Four thousand people crowded into the old home of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Brooklyn fans gasped with astonishment at the spectacle of the little man thumping the big man. "They call Dillon 'Man Mauler,'" That is a good name. They call him the 'Man Killer.' He almost did that too. It has been said by some that he is an overrated fighter, but it is not true. He is a great little man. He humbled Moran from the first round. He got to the right hand thunderbolt that dropped Moran from the air. He would land with force enough to knock Moran's mouth and nose. The punches did not seem to travel more than a couple of inches, but it was as if he were using a knife.

Jack Curley
KNOCKED 'EM DEAD
WITH HIS 'ICE-SCREAM' CLOTHES.

He would stand there in an apathetic sort of way, his brow wrinkled in a sort of sort of way and his short arms at his sides. He would be like a man, the boy warring off the licks of a big fellow. Then suddenly he would slide away from the ropes and get close up to that fat, nasty-looking body in front of him. His gloves would begin driving upward. Nearly every blow would smack into Moran's face. It was rather sheepishly as if he had no great relish for the task of knocking the little chap who was nearly thirty-six pounds lighter than himself. Not until the third round did he seem to take the thing seriously. Then he banded Dillon to the ropes with powerful drives.

A LEFT-HOOK THAT TURNED MORAN AROUND—AND ALMOST PUT HIM DOWN IN THE 4TH ROUND—

Jack the Giant Killer was apparently the victim of the attack. Moran would hit his right back until he was below his hip. Taking careful aim, he let it go. Dillon's round head rolled under the punch. The same right would sweep curiously into Jack's body and the little fellow would crumple and cringe. The Moran enthusiasts were yelling for a K. O. Dillon came out from under the shower of blows with a crash and a flurry and a great show of white teeth and took into the big man, fate whirling violently. He is an indubitable little devil in human form, this chunky chap from the Hoosier state, and make no mistake about it. One round was much like another after the third, which was Moran's. The first two were about even. After that Dillon led. He had little or no chance of knocking out the punch-eating Pittsburgher, but he gave him a suffering thumping. Moran seemed fat and in poor condition. That is no excuse for him whatever. He tried hard to land a haymaker in the last round. He tried even harder in other rounds, but all the time that fat little man was around, or underneath him, or trying to climb on top of the jaw in the fourth. The blood started on the body in the fifth. He knocked Dillon to the ropes with a slight touch of the body in the sixth. For every blow he landed, however, he got two in return. An old adage of the ring was upset. A good little man is a good big man—at least one of the best of the big men we have.
